Become a member of 3F before 1 February in order to receive conflict-compensation in the event of a major conflict

A decent trade union negotiates your pay and provides help if negotiations break down.

And in a short while, 3F will once again take part in the negotiations for the 2023 collective bargaining in the private sector.

Although negotiators usually manage to reach a settlement without a strike or lockout, the risk of a major conflict is always present.

The 3F has the financial capacity to cover you in the event of a major conflict, which means that you will be entitled to conflict compensation.

If you are not a member of 3F, or only a member of the 3F unemployment fund, you cannot receive financial support during a conflict. You will also not be able to receive unemployment benefits if your workplace is in conflict

If you become unemployed as a result of the conflict, you will not be able to receive unemployment benefit and we may potentially be forced to close down the payment of unemployment benefit to all members.

Become a member before 1 February 2023, and pay subscription by 1 March 2023.
